Private Yards Get 4 New Cruisers to Cost 48 Millions

President Chooses Private Shipyards Instead of Navy Plant

6,000 WARPLANES

Senate Raises Limit of 5,500 Fixed by the Lower Chamber

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Roosevelt authorized the Navy Tuesday to build four new, 6,000-ton cruisers in private shipyards.

Under the Vinson-Trammell act, two cruisers would have been built in private and two in Navy yards, unless the president specifically directed otherwise.

The cost of the four will total about 48 million dollars.

Charles Edison, assistant Secretary of the Navy, said three benefits would be gained by having them built in private yards. He said:

"We will get them more cheaply, more quickly, and we will get better quality as regards uniformity."

6,000 Warplanes

WASHINGTON, (AP) — A bill authorizing the Army Air Corps to increase its strength to 6,000 warplanes was approved by the senate Monday after a debate which emphasized the "threat" of the dictator nations to democracies of the world.

The vote, 54 to 28, was taken toward the close of a day which also saw the navy again advance its proposal for establishing a naval air base on the island of Guam, a project which the house rejected.

Admiral Leahy, chief of naval operations, appeared before the senate naval affairs committee to urge the proposal, saying the strategic position of such a base in the Western Pacific would give it "inestimable value" to this country and act as a strong "deterrent" for any nation which might contemplate an attack upon Hawaii or the Pacific coast of the United States.

The senate's vote came in the course of its consideration of the $338,000,000 rearmament bill, carrying the bulk of the administration's national defense program. The measure has passed the house, but that body voted for a 5,500-plane air corps.

Miaja, Moderate Spaniard, Crushes Communist Revolt

Head of Republican Government Pursues Course for Peace

REDS ARE ENRAGED

Resort to Fighting Within Madrid, Put Down by Loyalists

MADRID, Spain. — (AP) — Warplanes were used over Madrid by General Jose Miaja's new republican defense government Tuesday in an effort to crush an uprising of "some troops" said to have been inspired by Communists.

Earlier pronouncements by General Miaja and his defense minister, General Casado, said that the revolt—an apparent attempt to force continuation of the civil war, as opposed to Miaja's expressed desire for a "worthy peace"—was under control.

The revolt developed among troops in the environs of Madrid. In the machine-gun fire in the outlying sections, isolated snipers kept up an intermittent fire within the city proper.

Gen. Miaja in Command

PARIS, France. — (AP) — An anti-Communist National Defense Council, headed by General Miaja, held Madrid and most of republican Spain in a tight military grip Monday night, trying to end the war by a surrender to the Nationalists.

As General Franco's armies awaited developments, ready to attack, the new government, which overthrew the regime of Premier Negrin in a week-end coup, fought down opposition of the Communists.

The council's own reports, broadcast on the Madrid radio, reported Communist attempts to "disturb public order" in Madrid were being met with "strong measures."

Madrid dispatches, however, said that all the central zone beyond Madrid, with the exception of Cartagena, where the republican navy escaped to the Mediterranean in a week-end revolt, was quiet and orderly. The situation at Cartagena, republican naval base, was described in Madrid dispatches as "uncertain."

Troops Used

In Madrid, troops backing General Miaja, commander-in-chief of republican Spain's land, air and sea forces until he becomes head of the government, are only awaiting an order from General Franco, Nationalist guns, to bombard the capital twice Monday morning. But the Nationalist troops stayed in their trenches.

Reds Lose Leader

Communists formed the main support of Premier Negrin who apparently had considered further resistance against General Franco up to the time of his overthrow.

$100.05 Is Raised in Quick Drive for Funds Tuesday Morning

TAKE SUBSTITUTES

Extra $25 Will Enable Hammons to Have Some Replacements

Coach Foy Hammons and his champion district 10 basketball team won't have to "thumb" their way to Fayetteville.

They won't have to "bunk up in some tourist court" when they get there—thanks to the generosity of Hope athletic fans and supporters of the Bobcats.

The money has been raised—one hundred dollars and five cents.

Hammons and his team will leave Hope Thursday morning for Fayetteville where on Friday the team will go into action against Harrison in the first round of the state basketball tournament.

Until Tuesday morning it was doubtful whether the team would represent southwest Arkansas at the state tournament. Depletion of the high school athletic fund, caused by poor gate receipts at basketball games, had caused much worry to both the team and Coach Hammons.

Hammons let his troubles be known through the press Monday afternoon.

Compromise Due on Rate Question

South Willing to Trade to Hold Western Men in Line

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Southern congressmen moved quickly Monday to avert a split with Western members over proposals to equalize railroad freight rates throughout the country.

Noting expressions of fear from Westerners that the rate schemes were "too drastic and dangerous," the Southerners indicated they were willing to support a more moderate plan.

Chief objection centered around provisions seeking to prohibit the Interstate Commerce Commission from fixing a higher rate from one territory to another than the charges applying to similar shipments the same distance within the territory of destination.

Representative Ranspeck (Dem., Ga.) chairman of the so-called West-House freight bloc in the House, said he and Senator Hill (Dem., Ala.) were attempting to write a bill which would be acceptable both to Southern and Western members.

His statement followed a morning conference at which Western congressmen and Idaho and North Dakota transportation officials discussed bills by Ranspeck and others embodying the controversial "destination rate scale."

The Westerners said their chief concern was the protection of existing "commodity freight rates" which gave shippers of the intermountain and Midwestern agricultural areas an easy access to Eastern markets for certain of their products, such as potatoes, hay, lettuce and livestock.

They were fearful, they said, the new rate proposals would wipe out this type of rate and substitute a "disastrous class rate" which would curtail shipments.

Ranspeck said he would call a meeting of the West-South bloc soon and offer a substitute bill.

Hill has suggested a measure to outlaw rate discriminations. He would call upon the I. C. C. to enter orders, without waiting for shippers' complaints, abolishing any undue rate advantage or disadvantage in the existing structure. Both Ranspeck and Hill emphasized they had never insisted on the destination formula, but offered it merely as a basis of discussion. Ranspeck did not call on the rate bloc to endorse it.

John Wells and Corporation Body Lose Senate Bout

Senate Would Transfer Probe Authority to Attorney General

DEFEAT LAND BILL

House Turns Down Tenancy Measure by Vote 42 to 40

LITTLE ROCK. — (AP) — After opponents had charged that the measure was a political attempt by the governor to "destroy the usefulness" of State WPA Administrator Floyd Sharp, the senate adopted by a 15-to-14 standing vote Tuesday an amendment placing the proposed investigation of the Dyess colony in the hands of the attorney general instead of the State Corporation Commission.

An administration spokesman opposed the amendment on the ground that its adoption would "kill" the bill. Because of the adoption of the amendment the bill could not be voted upon in the senate before Wednesday.

Fagan, of Little Rock, speaking for the amendment, called State Corporation Commissioner John Wells by name and said he is "one of the most able fellows on the corporation commission, but one of the most vicious fellows who ever wrote a line in the papers of this state. He is going to try to destroy the usefulness of a man who is doing his best to do something for the people of Arkansas."

2 New Sales Tax Bills

Warned that a special session would be called within 10 days if the assembly did not re-enact the sales tax law, the house completed action Tuesday on two sales tax bills despite charges that one is unconstitutional and the other would build a political machine.

The bills were the Crawford measure to repeal the June 30, 1939, expiration clause in the 1937 sales tax law, and the Milum bill to re-enact the tax and provide for the licensing of retailers by the state revenues commissioner.

The house completed action on three workmen's compensation bills and sent them to the governor.

They were: The Smith-Coleman senate bill; the Horton-Murray-Holland house bill; and the Campbell house bill.

There was no debate, under an agreement that all workmen's compensation bills would be passed and sent to the governor, leaving him the choice as to which becomes law.

Without the debate the house defeated 42 to 40 a bill sponsored by the Arkansas Farm Tenancy Commission to provide a method of quieting title to lands forfeited to the state for non-payment of taxes.

Patmos Students Visit Legislature

Junior and Senior Classes Give Account of Their Journey

On Tuesday, February 21, the junior and senior class of Patmos High School made a trip to the Legislature at Little Rock with Miss Kilpatrick, our government teacher.

We left home about 5:30 o'clock and arrived in Little Rock about 10 o'clock.

At the capitol we went to the Senate where we were welcomed by James Pilkinton, our senator from this district. He introduced us to Rev. Harper, the chaplain of the senate, who gave us cards to sign and carried us to the balcony to view the senate in action.

There we were introduced to the entire senate by Senator Pilkinton. While we were there a bill was passed declaring that a person who overloaded his truck would have to get a permit and give bond for any damage he would do.

We left the senate and went to the House of Representatives where Royce Weisenberger, one of our representatives from this county, met us. There, as in the senate, we went upon the balcony to view them in action. The house was meeting as a committee and amending bills. They adopted a group of bills and considered a bill on appropriating money for the Jonesboro A. and M. College.

After we left the house a guide, Mr. Smith, carried us to visit other departments. Some of them were the Revenue, Military and Historical Departments, the Supreme Court room and the office of Secretary of State Hall. There we were given pictures of the state capitol.

Leaving there about 12 o'clock we went to an old water mill, which was built in 1832. The mill, located north of Little Rock is partly petrified, but the old water wheel still runs. This was one of the most beautiful and most interesting sights we saw.

On our way back through Little Rock we passed by the 535 Service Station and the Senior High School building.

Modern People and Ancient Superstitions

Could there be any connection between these things:
The world today is governed less by reason and more by instinct and momentary feeling than at any time in recent years.

"Superstition is increasing by leaps and bounds," says Rev. G. R. Balleine and Dr. H. L. Goudge, British Church of England divines, who have studied the superstition situation and written a recent pamphlet about it.

Tom Paine, philosophical father of his country, thought he saw dawning 170 years ago "The Age of Reason." He believed he could see a day coming when men would regulate their affairs sensibly, sanely, without passion, and in the sweet light of pure reason.

For a while it seemed that this might almost come true as Paine dreamed it. But today it seems farther away than ever. More and more in the affairs of today's world we substitute bluster for brains, impulse for intelligence, hitters for judgement, and rancor for reason.

Whole peoples today are ruled by the idea that to settle human problems by the exercise of cool reason is somehow degenerate; that the really red-blooded way to settle a problem is to work up a temperature of 104 and then grab a club and knock the ears off anybody who happens to be standing in the way.

What has all this to do with the growth of superstition envisioned by the learned English divines? Just this: It is in such a world that rank growths of superstition flourish most abundantly. They complement and support the lack of reason as applied to affairs. That is why the campaign of the British clergy must to stamp it out is a timely one.

They believe that all superstitions are "forms of mental disease."
We wouldn't know about that, but it is certain that the extremely superstitious live in a world which they have unnecessarily filled with terrors and restrictions. Life is quite complex enough with real and perfectly evident troubles and griefs. To fill it with purely imaginary dangers, threats, menaces, and terrors, or even with illusory omens and portents of good fortune, is to suffer unnecessarily.

Fortunately, one man's superstition is another man's laughing-stock.
Nobody believes them all. Why, imagine a man going around knocking on wood refusing to walk under ladders, sit with 14 at table, do anything on Friday, or shake hands over a threshold. Huh! Such foolishness! Or worrying about spilling salt.

Wait a minute! THAT'S unlucky! Unless you throw a pinch of it over your left shoulder.

Risk Is Increased If Twins Are Born at Different Times

As more and more interest is being taken in the problems of childbirth, particularly since the birth of the Dionne quintuplets, we hear more and more of extraordinary happenings in the field of multiple births.

Most recent reports concern an instance in which one child was born promptly, but several days passed before the birth of the second child.
There are many cases in which twins have been born more than 12 hours apart.

It is extraordinary, however, for a much greater interval to elapse between the birth of twins, because the modern specialist in obstetrics seldom cares to take the chance of waiting too long for the birth of the second child. There is possible danger to the mother, due to conditions associated with childbirth, such as bleeding and collapse, and particularly possible danger to the second child resulting from separation of the tissues by which it is attached to the mother before the child is born.

Therefore, in most instances nowadays in which twins are being born, it is customary for the physician to take definite action immediately after the first child is born. In such action he determines any causes which may be delaying the birth of the remaining child. He then determines whether or not the conditions are such as to permit interference. Having taken the necessary steps to overcome obstructive conditions, if possible, he may allow a short time to elapse to determine whether or not the child may be born in the normal spontaneous manner.

During this period someone must listen constantly to the heart of the second child to determine whether or not it is beating satisfactorily or whether or not any conditions are occurring which may interfere with its continued life. Then if the second child is not born within a quarter of an hour or a half hour, it becomes possible for the physician to undertake obstetrical procedures, such as the use of forceps or manual maneuvers leading to a prompt birth of the second child.

If, as rarely occurs, the second child has gone into such a position that it is practically impossible for it to be born without some sort of manipulation or operative procedure, the attending physician decides which procedure to follow.

A Book a Day

Here Are New Pioneers

If you think that the courage and the stamina of the pioneer are found wanting these days in the city-bred, Katharine Pinkerton's lusty story of hardships in the trackless north woods,
"Wilderness Wife" (Carroll and Evans; $2.75). You lay it down with the feeling that if America had a frontier left at all, the Pinkertons would be daring it.

To begin with, the odds were decidedly against this average American couple. Robert Pinkerton, newspaperman, was forced to abandon his job due to ill health. His wife, just breaking to secretarial work, was hardly equipped for housekeeping, to say nothing of making a home in the rugged lands above Ontario. Yet that is precisely what they did.

What's more they did it on $80!
The siffling secretary learned to paddle a canoe, run a trapline, crack the lash above a straining howling dog team. Her husband, meanwhile, built a cabin with the hands that had formerly built only sentences. Somehow, they got through that first winter, and found they liked it! They stayed four years. They raised a baby for good measure. And Mr.
Pinkerton sold some stories.

You will find "Wilderness Wife" an unusual book, strong with the tang of confiners and zestful living. A series of splendid photographs add the final note.

In sharpest contrast is another book of travel of a man and wife, "Crucial Island in the Caribbean" by Heath and Jefferson Bowen (Bobbs-Merrill; $3.50). This couple "got away from it all," too, but their story is as languorous as the Pinkerton's is vigorous.

You will find it an interesting combination of history, personal experience, color. But there is little drama these days about the Spanish Main.
Fight, if fight there is, is largely against the insect. —P.G.F.

Daffodils

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host of golden daffodils,
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.
Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the Milky Way,
They stretched in never ending line
Along the margin of the bay;
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.
I gazed and gazed, but little thought Of wealth that show to me had brought.
For oft when on my couch I lie,
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils.
—Selected.

The above lovely old poem came to mind in a recent drive over our city when we saw the beautiful sweep of so many of our spacious lawns yellow with that lovely harbingers of spring, the daffodil. Surely one's heart could not but fill with pleasure, even without being in "vacant or in pensive mood," at such an exquisite sight. Each yard seems to be donning a beautiful spring gown, with a wealth of colorful japonica, the forsythia and spirea adding their bursting loveliness to the procession of spring's earliest messengers.

Cylinders-in-Line in New Air Engine

Air-Cooled, Narrow Front Presents Less Flight Resistance

NEW ORK.—(AP)—A new principle of engine design making possible greater speeds in the air was announced Monday night by Sherman M. Fairchild, president of the Ranger Engineering Corp. of Farmingdale, N. Y.

By cooling cylinders with air under pressure, Fairchild said, the company has been able to manufacture the world's lightest cylinders-in-line aircraft motor per horsepower.

In a flight test the speed of a small transport was increased 13 per cent above that developed by conventional radial motors which fan out from a central crankcase. Several of the new engines, rated at 500 horsepower, were entered in a recent government military competition.

"There is no reason," said Fairchild, "why motors built on this principle cannot be made in sizes to produce 2,400 or even 3,000 horsepower."

The most powerful airplane motors in current commercial or military use in this country produce 1,800 horsepower at their highest rated speed. Weight per horsepower and size of the frontal area are two of the most important factors in engine-building because of their influence on design and speed of airplanes.

Fairchild's motor, weighing 1.28 pounds per horsepower, is more than 200 pounds lighter than the nearest competitive models built in Europe.

Cooling, the big problem in in-line motors which have no jackets for liquid to draw off the heat, is accomplished by "scooping" the air into a chamber where it is discharged equally upon all the cylinders through baffle plates.

Fairchild called attention to the development of in-line engines with low frontal area for use in fighting planes by both Germany and Great Britain to emphasize the importance of such research work in this country.

Careful Planning Keeps Garden Costs Down

Here's how a backyard looked after the owner had spent $60 in a three year period.

Second of a Series

How to plan a garden that will cost little but will give satisfactory and pleasing results:

The picture here was taken of a backyard. The ground is 60 feet deep and 25 feet wide.

When the owner began he knew nothing about growing plants or what effect he wanted. He had only a few dollars to spend but here is how he went about planning his garden.

He asked himself what he wanted to make of this area. He had small children so he wanted some place where they could play and he had to have some place where his wife could hang clothes. This decided the fact that the center of the plot ought to be clear of shrubs, trees, or flower beds so this area became a lawn. His requirements directed him in good design.

He wanted a wall around his outdoor room and he wanted to screen out his own and his neighbor's garage. For this reason he planned a row of shrubs in the rear and sides and vines for the garage. He wanted shrubs and small trees that had good foliage in the summer, ones that had flowers at different times of the year, and ones that had berries for the winter and would furnish food for birds (this best insect eradicator in the summer).

Instead of planting evergreens, that cost one to five dollars apiece he bought good varieties of small trees and shrubs at 30 cents apiece. It didn't take many plants to give him a wall of green so he could afford to buy good varieties in small sizes.

He wanted to grow a few perennials, some annual flowers, and have a small pool for a water lily and some fish.

So he bought seeds of perennials at 15 cents a package and grew his own plants that would have cost him that much for each plant. With little expenditure he bought annual flower seeds at a dime a package and sowed them in the open ground.

He made the fish pool by buying cement, sand, and gravel, digging out a hole in the ground, and filling the bottom with the mixed concrete. He filled the pool with water from the garden hose and fish keep the water fresh.

What did this garden cost in dollars? It's hard to answer exactly because this warden wasn't built in a day or even a year. It has been three years under construction. There was good topsoil to begin with and by adding manure and some commercial fertilizer there is now good growing soil. The total cost of the original shrubs and trees was $25. Grass seed and flower seeds another $10. Incidentals another $25 or a total of about $60 during the three years. He did his own labor. What is the garden worth today? You guess. It might cost a thousand dollars if it had to be duplicated by contract.

At 4 o'clock we arrived at Benton, where we visited the State Hospital. There we were carried through one of the men's buildings, one of the women's buildings, and the cafeteria. In the women's building some were braiding cloth for rugs, others were sewing them together, while others played cards.

Leaving there we made only one other stop, arriving in Hope about 8:45 o'clock where we attended the show at the New Theater.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock, after a very interesting and educational journey, we arrived home.

The Spring Cold

With the mercury bouncing up and down in an attempt to keep pace with weather blowing hot one minute and cold the next, the housewife must keep her eyes open for sneezes and sniffles, warning signs of the obnoxious spring cold.

At this time of year colds are prevalent and everybody is more or less exposed, warns Miss Gertrude E. Conant, extension nutritionist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, in offering advice concerning the avoidance of this common malady.

Miss Conant points out that the best preventive measure is a diet containing plenty of milk, fruits and vegetables, and that the housewife must build up bodily vigor and resistance.

All scientists agree that colds are due to an infection of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat. But unless a person has lowered his resistance to infection by undue bodily fatigue or exposure and an improper diet. This infection can do no harm. The surest, easiest, and most effective way to avoid such infection is to look after the diet.

An extra amount of vitamin-A should be taken in the form of cod liver oil, butter or cream and egg yolk. Vitamin A is believed to strengthen the membranes of the nose, throat and intestinal tract against invasion by germs. Excessive amount of strach, sugar, salt and condiments in the diet, increase the amount of water in the tissues, which increases the activity of germs to a great extent. An excess of acid-forming foods, such as meats, fish and fowl, also increases the susceptibility of the body to infection. When one begins to sneeze, cut out such foods and rely largely upon milk, fruits and vegetables.

Just now citrus fruits are very plentiful and cheap. Statisticians tell us that the crop is 1/4 larger than any former bumper crops. Grapefruit is much cheaper than medicine and much pleasanter to take. Use it for breakfast, lunch, and dinner, and drink plenty of fruit juices instead of tea and coffee, and see how easy it is to ward off those unnecessary colds.

A protective diet is out best health insurance!

Spring Clothes

In the spring a young woman's fancy turns to new clothes, and Easter in rural homes is becoming an important event as it is on Park Avenue.

For the mothers and daughters already engrossed in planning a spring wardrobe, Miss Sue Marshall, extension specialist in clothing and household arts, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, offers the following suggestions:

Fashion is being influenced by the World's Fair in New York City, World's Fair prints being among the more popular new designs, and yellow, blue and pink among the popular colors.

Last year's dirdie is more sophisticated this year. Last sewing thread has made itself indispensable for these dresses which are shown in solid colored material, stripes and in floral prints. They are most popular with young girls who are tall and slender.

Another new type of dress is the loose full dress, gathered or pleated to a yoke and held in place by a broad belt. These dresses are referred to as Monk's dress, monastic dress, shift dress, or friar's coat.

Vionnet of Paris has introduced the broadened, padded shoulder line this year to emphasize the slenderness of the waist line. He calls this a "shrug shoulder".

Dressmaker coats have appeared this year to be worn with printed dresses as an ensemble. Straight loose coats are also new and popular.

Shirt waist dresses are more popular this year and are much more feminine looking. They may have tailored lines but are softened by narrow ruffles and are made of sheer fabrics such as chiffon, swiss or cleanses.

Hats for spring are somewhat larger than they were during the winter and the crowns are often higher. Earily hats are swathed in veils but these will not be so popular later in the spring. Colors will be gay, and bows of ribbon and garlands of flowers will perk jauntily all over the crowns of hats.

Skirts will be fuller and short for those who can wear them. Conservative gored skirts will be worn by those not so slender. Skirts with 14 to 16 gores that are top stitched have replaced the sun ray pleated skirts of last year.

Lumber jacks, boleros, and fitted packets are all shown for wear with sun dresses and evening dresses.

Moire is used this year for street dresses.

Gardening Can Be Cure For "Spring Fever"

In the spring there's a kind of magic that affects the soul. Children feel the quickening as well as do grown-ups. They get tired of monotonous routine and long for a change of some kind. Contrary to the belief that spring fever dulls the senses and stops energy, the sight of the first robin stirs up the imagination.

Now is the time that we want to do things differently. We want to create and get away from the rut. Custom becomes a burden and we fairly burst to express ourselves in some other way.

So let us look about and make an effort to help the children put themselves into something of interest. The stamp album will wait. So will the Chinese checkers or the anagrams.

Spring slips away before we know it, and there is no time to waste.

Why not, then, begin on some seeds? It is one thing to go to the florist's and buy flowers for the table. Another thing entirely to put an onion bulb into the ground and watch the first emerald shoots come up.

But as ground cannot be worked too early, and as many people have no ground at all for gardens, early March still presents possibilities for the young gardener. An indoor garden can

Giants Consider Hubbell, Schumacher Key to Flag Hopes

Terry Should Have Few Worries Other Than Mound Staff

By JERRY BRONFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer
BOSTON, March 7.—The Giants believe that if Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher are all right they'll run away with the National League pennant.

With Mel Ott, Frank Demaree, Joe Moore, Zeke Bonura, and Harry Danning, the New Yorkers agree they have power to spare.

Another consensus of the Polo Grounders is that William Harold Terry put it all over Gabby Hartnett in the clubs' winter trade, which transferred Bill Jurgens, Demaree and Ken O'Dea to Manhattan in exchange for Richard Bartell, Henry Leiber and Gus Mancuso.

Danning can't understand why there wasn't more comment on that swap. To his way, Jurgens has it over Bartell like a circus tent.

Bartell Can No Longer Go to His Right—Danning

"Two years ago Bartell was a good shortstop, but he has slowed up," says Danning, who speaks right out even when addressing Bill Terry, who rules the remainder of the Horace Stoneham crowd with an iron hand.

"Dick can't go to his right any more. Even if he has a top second baseman in Bill Herman, he still has to get his hands on the ball."

With the acquisition of the home run-hitting Zeke Bonura and as a result of the trade with Chicago, the Giants feel positive that all they require is pitching to run away and hide from the Cubs.

When Terry became suddenly ill at Hot Springs, someone cracked that no man could hope to weather a day in which he tried to strangle out both Bonura and Jack Winslet.

Dickey Alone Is Better Than Sewell, Says Mack

Before the Brooklyn club took the veteran Luke Sewell from the White Sox, Larry MacPhail asked Connie Mack for an opinion.

"If you are willing to put up that money for one year," replied the grand old man of the Athletics, "you will have as good catching, either first string or reserve, as any American League club except the Yankees, who happen to possess Bill Dickey."

Then why did Chicago dispose of Sewell?

And where was Detroit?

Change in Pitching Rules Meaningless

Joe McCarthy, of the Yankees asserts that the change made in the pitching rules at the December meeting doesn't make much difference.

Fitchers more comfortable with both feet on the rubber will, no doubt, continue to pitch that way.

Fellows who liked to sneak one foot back to obtain more leverage can now do so without violating the rule.

Dudgers Can't Even Recognize Each Other

Natives of Clearwater don't recognize the Dodgers.

There's a different man barking Brooklyn orders, Leo Durocher.

Coaches Bill Killefer and Chuck Dressen have replaced Jess Haines and Andy Hill.

Dolf Camilli is advertising San Francisco's World's Fair with a Vanddyke beard under a 10-gallon hat.

Vice President Joe Gillendeau is hiding behind smoked glasses. Secretary John Macdonald is down to the flyweight limit after climbing the Ozark hills.

And there are so many new faces in camp that new players continually are being introduced to one another.

100 YEARS OF BASEBALL

No. 20—Early Baseball Wars

During its first 25 years, the National League's strong central organization saw it through three baseball wars... with the Union Association, the Players League, and the American Association. The Union Association's battle-cry was "Abolish the reserve rule."

The Players League of 1890 was the result of a reaction on the part of members of the National Brotherhood of Ball Players, numbering many stars, against control of major league baseball by clubs instead of the athletes. The break resulted in a two-year war.

History of the National Game Told in Sketches by Art Krenz

Col. A. G. Mills was elected president of the National League in 1883. He drew up the first national baseball agreement.

When the Players League passed out it took with it the first American Association. National League clubs were hard hit.

NEXT: The Baltimore Orioles.

Training Camps

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—Lute Appling, varsity shortstop and last White Sox to sign his 1939 contract arrived in spring training camp Monday, looking physically fit and anxious to swing into action.

His arrival left only Gerald Walker missing, the outfielder having informed Manager Jimmy Dykes he would get here as soon as he recovers from the flu at Hot Springs, Ark.

AVALON, Calif.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs may not be better this season, but at least they are going to be smaller.

Many of last season's hefty players have sliced off bulging waists in spring drills. Billy Herman, second baseman who carried 200 pounds around most of the 1938 campaign, is down to 185.

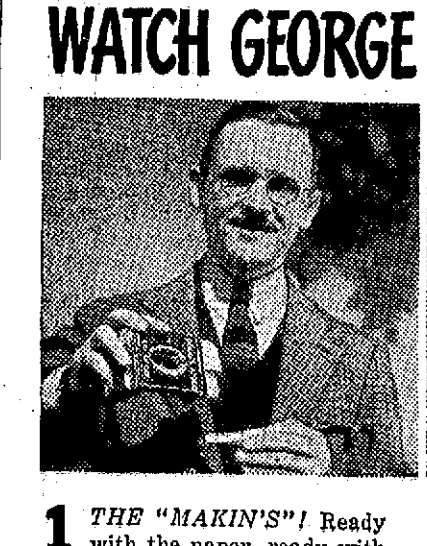

Southpaw Harlan, Larry French is down to 191 and even Chicago Manager Gabby Hartnett has walked, trotted and batted off enough poundage to get down to 211 pounds.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Ray Blades, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, believes Rookie Joe Orenco will make a polished major league infielder.

"He looks like Tommy Thevenot (the great shortstop who helped the Cards win the 1926 pennant and world series) did when he broke in," commented Blades Monday. "He even pounds his glove exactly as Tommy used to do. Yes, Orenco looks like a fine fielder. I'm waiting to see whether he can hit."

Orenco, 22, batted 277 with Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League in 1938.

WATCH GEORGE WOOD CLOSELY AS HE ROLLS UP HIS JOY-SMOKIN'

1 THE "MAKIN'S"! Ready with the paper, ready with the tobacco! And look at what he rolls—yes, sir, Prince Albert! His name is George E. Wood (insurance) and he says: "Start with Prince Albert and you're all set. I got a yen for P.A. and you're about to see why..."

2 LAYS RIGHT! P.A. snug-gles right down in the paper, pinches up tight, thanks to its "crimp cut." "I'll say it rolls firm and neat," says Wood. "It's the easiest-handling 'makin's' tobacco I know of. That special cut helps Prince Albert to smoke cooler and taste mellow..."

3 ROLLS RIGHT! It's so easy to get the "hang" of rollin' 'em if you use P.A. The picture can't show how quickly Wood twirls up his "makin's," but it's only a matter of seconds. "And speakin' of taste," he says, "well, Prince Albert has more taste—more smoke-joy—and no bite."

4 READY? GO! Look at that smile on George Wood's face as he lights up his mellow-smoking "makin's" cigarette. "Show me a man with a P.A. tin peeking out of his pocket," he says, "and I'll show you a real contented smoker who's enjoying a smooth 'makin's' cigarette."

Sutherland Quits Pitt University

Athletic Conditions Are Intolerable, Says Grid Mentor

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Dr. John Bain Sutherland, declaring that athletic conditions at the University of Pittsburgh had become "intolerable" for him, officially parted company with his alma mater for whom he has been turning out some of the most powerful football teams in the land the past 15 years.

Chancellor John G. Bowman, accepted the "gloomy Scot's" resignation with "our high respect, good will and good wishes for your continued success."

Dr. Sutherland—"Jock" to the grid-iron world—kept secret his plans, but told newsmen he would not accept an offer to coach at Mississippi State College.

The coach's letter of resignation, ending two years of friction with the administration, reflected the opinion he once expressed that the wave of idealism over football at the university was a case of "going too far."

Sutherland's resignation was formally given in a letter to Dr. Bowman, who a year ago indicted the "Bowman code" for restricting athletics at Pitt to a strictly amateur basis. Sutherland wrote:

"As you know my resignation has nothing to do with the ideals and objectives of the code for the conduct of athletics. I am in favor of good standards. However, the present system of athletic administration has resulted in conditions which, for me, are intolerable."

"I know from our conversations that you have no desire to have me stay on under conditions which cause me great worry and unhappiness."

Dr. Bowman expressed surprise. Dr. Bowman in his letter expressed surprise, saying:

"I had thought that by our recent talks, both between ourselves and also with other members of the department present, we had ironed out differences of opinions. These difficulties are evidently more deeply rooted than I realized."

Red Sox teammates Monday in the club's initial session. After giving himself the stiffest workout since last September, Grove advised Manager Joe Cronin: "My arm feels as good as ever."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, Charley Ruffing and Babe Dahlgren made their first appearance in the New York Yankees camp and took part in the drill Monday as the full squad had its initial workout.

Red Rolfe and Frank Crosetti, the holdovers, were the only absentees.

DiMaggio, looking lean and fit, scalped 185 after the workout, while Ruffing, who had been working a month at Long Beach, Calif., was cutting loose with his pitches in warming up. Lou Gehrig, Joe Gordon, Billy Knickerbocker and Dahlgren hooked up for the first infield drill.

LAKELAND, Fla.—(AP)—Rudy York, the Detroit Tigers No. 2 slugger who put on a home run race with Hank Greenberg last year, walked several balls over the faroff left field wall in batting practice Monday. Frank Croucher, bidding for Bill Rogell's shortstop job, showed well in the field and at bat.

ed with yourself than you stated in any of our talks."

Bowman, John Weber, university secretary, and James Hagan, athletic director, last conferred with Sutherland on Thursday.

Bowman told newsmen Sutherland then appeared in "complete accord" with the strict "amateur code, the policy against "special dispensation of scholarships to football players and plans for "new" football material.

To which Sutherland said: "That's not my story."

Challenger Mildly Surprised

Tony Galento . . . not scared, you understand, just amazed.

van shellacked bar flies. Yussel the Muscle put Galento on a diet of beer and big black cigars.

He made Two-Ton a comic strip character.

If the signor had to be a joke, he'd make a joke out of the entire business.

Jacob's program lent itself readily to pictures and stories, and the shrewd little man from New York's west side made the most of it.

Galento's present position is a striking example of the power of sheer ballyhoo. No puglist ever had a better one.

Jacobs was ruthless in building Galento. There were, to put it mildly, unfavorable aftermaths to certain of his appearances . . . those with Jorge Breesia in Newark and Nattie Brown in Detroit in particular.

But Jacobs paid not the slightest attention. Galento went right on talking about moderating that bum, Louis, wit' his left.

Smashing Victory Over Feldman Qualifies Signor

Once it appeared as though they had Jacobs cornered. When he remarked in New York that no one of "class" would tackle Galento, he and his glorified gladiator nearly were killed in the rush. Bob Pastor and Maurice Strickland led the charge, but Jacobs sidestepped neatly, and Galento calls into the Louis production on the strength of having belted around Abe Feldman, a broken-down sparring partner.

Galento at 29 gets his big shot at an opportune time in late June . . . with the World's Fair at its height. The show may do as much as $750,000 in New York.

Those who know Jacobs do not begrudge him the break. Whatever he gets will be put back in circulation in a hurry. He couldn't keep in funds if he had access to the Bank of England. He's one of the most graceful spenders who ever came down the pike.

The affair is a travesty, of course. Galento has about as much chance with Louis as the Phillies have of landing in the world series.

But after what he has accomplished with Galento, it's nothing that Joe Jacobs does should surprise.

Didn't he talk Max Schmeling into the championship as the "Baron of Frankfurt" groveled on the floor?

Bowling

Tuesday night at the bowling alleys at Hope Fair Park an orchestra from Texarkana will accompany the bowlers as they battle for high score.

The Kiwanis club will bowl from 8 to 9 o'clock with A. W. Stubbeman defending his honors as high man.

Webb Womack has finally passed Newt Bundy's high mark of 243 which stood for two weeks. Womack bowled 244 and sometime later increased his lead to 245.

Clyde Coffee led the Geo. W. Robinson bowlers with 180 with Farrell Williams second with 160. Miss Opal Garner led the women bowlers with 120.

In the regular Monday night bowling of the Hope Rotary club, Rev. Thomas Brewster was high man, bowling 190, followed by Leon Carrington with 135.

Girl Whose Exploits Thrilled Old-Timers in Arctic Goes 'Dude'

By NEA Service
SUN VALLEY, Idaho — Heroine of Arctic exploits more suited to hard-boiled old sourdoughs than to a slender slip of a girl, Mary Joyce has temporarily gone "dude." She and her dog-team sled are kept busy here giving winter sports enthusiasts a taste of the real north by taking them on short trips into the nearby White Sawtooth Mountains.

Born in Wisconsin, trained as a nurse, Mary Joyce fell victim to the spell of the Yukon 10 years ago, after several hunting trips into the Taku River country, north of Juneau. She opened, and is still proprietress of a hunting out post village of Taku, Alaska.

It was in 1925 that she pulled the stunt which brought her fame throughout Alaska. She drove a dog team 1000 miles from Taku to Fairbanks, Alaska. The mercury was down to around 50 below for most of the long "mush," part of which was through unmapped area that had never seen a white person.

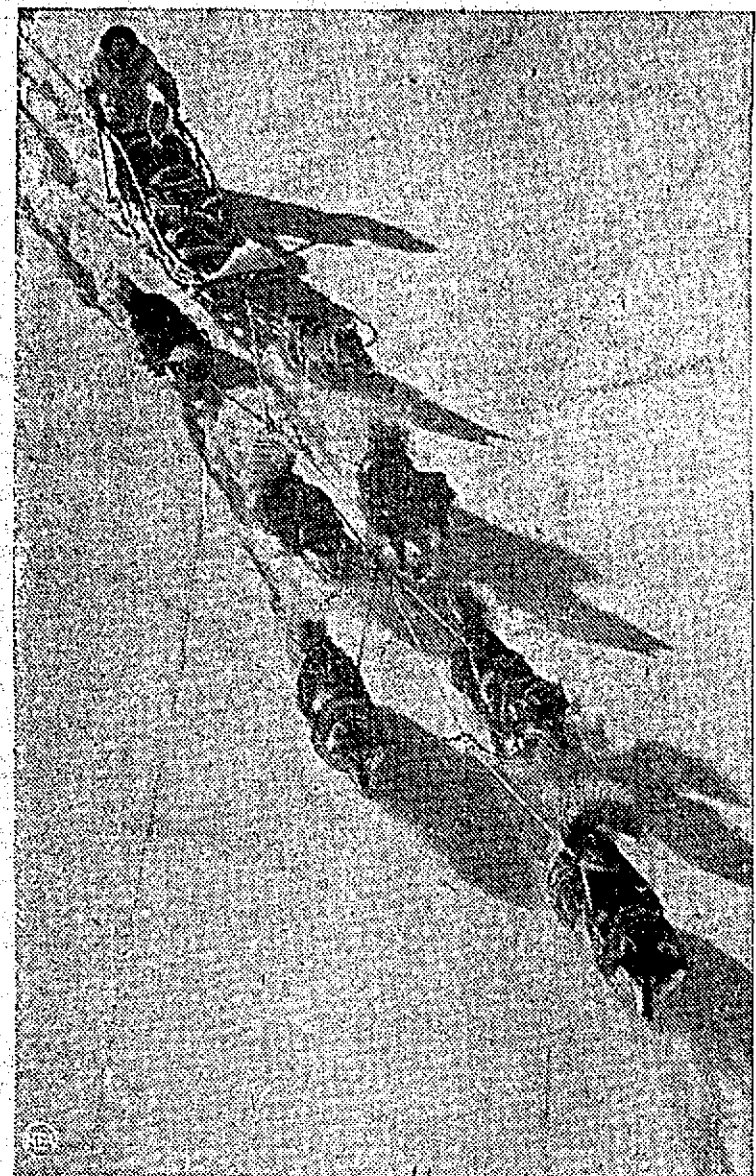

An Indian guide accompanied her for 250 miles, but the remainder of the long cold hike, she made alone.

At Snag, Alaska, on the White River, she got her down. Her failure to appear at Fairbanks according to schedule caused such alarm that an aviator flew out along her trail until he located her.

"My only purpose in the trip was to get better acquainted with the country," Mary said. "I certainly learned it on that trip."

Another exploit that brought her fame was the rescue, in 1926, of the Alaskan "Glacier Priest," Father Hubbard. She took him from a slippery rock where he had been marooned after his boat was wrecked in the Twin Glacier River's swift current.

Since realizing her dependence on dog-teams she has made Alaskan huskies and malamutes one of her hobbies. Through careful selective breeding, Miss Joyce has now a team of eleven beautifully perfect specimens.

New Frigidaire Models Displayed Automotive Supply Co., Introduces 1939 Cold-Wall Models

One of the most important scientific and engineering developments made in recent years in the electrical refrigeration industry has been announced by officials of the Frigidaire division of General Motors Sales Corporation, with the introduction of the new 1939 Cold-Wall models, now on display in the showroom of Automotive Supply Co., local Frigidaire dealer.

This new model, representing a most unique application of a scientific principle, provides uniform low temperatures, very high humidity and eliminates moisture robbing air circulation. These three important factors have been added without adding a single moving part to the mechanism. Foods are kept naturally moist and vitally fresh longer than ever before because these three factors are utilized in combination.

Equally interesting to the public, even if not so startling in character as the new type food preserver, is the announcement of a new super value six cubic foot Frigidaire of conventional design to retail at a price under $150. A new all-time low for a Frigidaire of this size. Although representing a major cut in retail price in comparison to previously available models, the new six will retain the meter-miser type of compressor and freezing unit to be found in all models of the line.

The complete 1939 line of Frigidaire household refrigerators incorporated three basic series, known as the Special, the Master and the Cold Wall series, all being exclusive of the new super value six, which has been produced as a single model of outstanding value in the six foot classification.

With the County Agent
Oliver L. Adams

The County Committee on Land-Use has designated that Land-Use Mapping and Program Planning start in the communities and that the communities be political townships, in Hempstead county as is the case in the other 15 counties in Arkansas doing intensive Land-Use planning.

The county committee on land-use, with the assistance of state and federal agencies having something to do with Land-Use, decided that much adjustment would probably be necessary in the future if living standards are maintained and improved.

The United States Department of Agriculture on the states are carrying out a number of public programs designed to aid in accomplishing a more permanent, balanced agriculture and better conditions of rural land use. Although these several programs have the same ultimate objectives, they use variety of measures, devices, and procedures for attaining the desired goals. As various measures are applied to a given locality, they in one way or another have a marked effect upon land use and the people dependent upon the land.

To assure that each of the public programs will make the greatest possible contribution toward better conditions of land use and financially sound agricultural economy, it is necessary that they be harmonized and applied in the field so as to fit the particular needs, conditions and problems of the state and local areas. It is necessary also that the people in the areas affected are in agreement on what constitutes better Land-Use and sound adjustment programs for their localities.

To bring about changes in land use needed for soil conservation, flood control, and other public purposes, and at the same time to promote economic farm organization and management, just that she's unwilling to be started at.

Steffi Duna

"Dancing Pirate," a color feature about early California in light musical comedy mood, was no help at all. Possibly because it had no star names, nobody seemed to like it except the critics.

Worse yet, Hollywood heard that Miss Duna had been a little hard to manage. Fact was that for five weeks, under the blazing, enervating lights of color films of that day, she was scarcely able to stand on her feet without almost continuous treatments by a masseuse.

In "Anthony Adverse" she played the torrid, homicidal half-caste in the African sequence, and in a few subsequent pictures has been a native gal of one nationality or another. Right now she's a native dancer in a South American cabaret, and with a pretty good part as the second feminine lead who's in love with Lloyd Nolan. Trouble with being a native gal, according to rigid Hollywood formula, is that she never gets her man.

She's Extra Modest
She dances, though. She dances like anybody's business, unless it may turn out to be some business of the Hays Office. Miss Duna wears a little gilt something here and a little gilt something there, and in the middle of her are middle she wears a rose.

This floral item is intended as a device of concealment, and it actually was suggested by the man who is looking after the picture's problems of censorship. I guess the fellow never has been to a burlesque show or he would know that a strategically-placed rose is, psychologically, a focal index of abdominal mobility.

I forgot to mention that Miss Duna wears a skirt, but it's a negligible and gauzy garment. Into this costume she was tested in a less revealing one. Although she has danced all over Europe from the age of 11, Miss Duna is shy about her legs. They're very fine legs, too, from any point of view. It's

She said, "Never in my life have I put on a bathing suit and gone out to be seen in public. In dancing I do not mind the costumes because I love dancing. But to take off something so I can be looked at makes me feel naked."

"Never yet have I posed in a bathing suit for what is called 'leg art.' Even if I want to lie in the sand I go to the women's side of a solarium. My mother says I was always like this. She says that once when I was 10 we were on a holiday in Italy and swimming in the Adriatic and I got into the water and wouldn't come out until evening and everybody had left the beach. You think this is a funny thing, but I really wish I were not so shy."

It is necessary to know rather specifically in which areas particular changes are needed. Otherwise, there is a real chance that the adjustments made in the interests of one program will be applied with too little reference to the immediate and long-time effects upon farm income and may throw existing systems of farming farther out of balance. Furthermore, it is not enough that certain individuals in the Department of Agriculture, the state colleges, or on the systems of farming are appropriate for particular local areas. This knowledge should be organized and made available to the administrators of the public programs and to present and prospective users of land resources.
